Judy A. Calhoun Named MCCCE Executive Director

The McCracken County Community Career Endowment, Inc. (MCCCE) is pleased to announce that Judy A. Calhoun has joined the organization as its new executive director, effective Monday, April 28.

Calhoun comes to the organization with 18 years of experience in directing mental health and developmental disabilities research and administration. She's a highly experienced regional coordinator of community and state-operated programs. One of her most recent volunteer positions has been as a Families In Transition Facilitator for Judge Cynthia Sanderson's Family Court, Commonwealth of Kentucky, here in McCracken County. She is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and active in a number of community organizations.

"We're very excited to have Judy join our organization to lead us to the next level," says board member Don Mitchell. "Our plans this year include substantially increasing our efforts and activities through increased funding via secured grants. We believe that Judy can help us make great strides in those areas."

MCCCE is dedicated to developing a more diverse and qualified job candidate pool to enhance the economic success of the McCracken County community.
